

Laurentian Bank donates $25,000 to Newcomer Women's Services Toronto

Montréal, June 27, 2023. —Laurentian Bank of Canada (the “Bank”) is proud to announce a $25,000 donation to Newcomer Women's Services Toronto (NEW) as part of the Bank's Giving Beyond Numbers™ program, supporting economic inclusion for New to Canada communities. Founded in 1983, Newcomer Women's Services Toronto (NEW) empowers newcomer women and their families in building a life in Canada by connecting them to social and economic opportunities and fostering a sense of belonging. The Bank's donation will support NEW's daily operations.

The Giving Beyond Numbers™ program embodies the Bank's unwavering commitment to fostering economic inclusion and empowerment for underrepresented groups. It focuses on supporting organizations across the country that strive to integrate newcomers and refugees economically, as well as those addressing economic inequities faced by marginalized communities, including racialized groups, 2SLGBTQIA+ communities, Indigenous peoples, and individuals with disabilities.

Quotes

“Laurentian Bank is deeply committed to fostering economic inclusion and empowerment for underrepresented groups. We believe in the transformative power of financial support and education to boost the social, cultural, and economic resilience of newcomer women and their families. We are excited to see the impact of our partnership with Newcomer Women's Services Toronto, as we strive together to build a more equitable future for all.” — Rania Llewellyn, President and CEO of Laurentian Bank

“Newcomer Women's Services Toronto (NEW) is thrilled of its new partnership with Laurentian Bank. Thanks to the Bank's generous contribution and donation of $25,000 that will enable NEW to continue its critical work in the community to support newcomer women and their families, and to continue delivering evidence-based programs that advance newcomer women social, culture and economic integration and resilience.”— Sara Asalya, Executive Director of Newcomer Women's Services Toronto
